

The timeline illustrates the progression of the COVID-19 pandemic from March 2020 to March 2022. It is divided into several phases:

- March 2020: Initial outbreak in Wuhan, China, with the first cases reported.
- April 2020: Rapid spread across China and other countries, leading to the first deaths.
- May 2020: Continued spread, with the first cases reported in the United States.
- June 2020: Widespread transmission, leading to the first deaths in the United States.
- July 2020: Continued spread, with the first cases reported in the United Kingdom.
- August 2020: Widespread transmission, leading to the first deaths in the United Kingdom.
- September 2020: Continued spread, with the first cases reported in India.
- October 2020: Widespread transmission, leading to the first deaths in India.
- November 2020: Continued spread, with the first cases reported in Brazil.
- December 2020: Widespread transmission, leading to the first deaths in Brazil.
- January 2021: Continued spread, with the first cases reported in South Africa.
- February 2021: Widespread transmission, leading to the first deaths in South Africa.
- March 2021: Continued spread, with the first cases reported in Australia.
- April 2021: Widespread transmission, leading to the first deaths in Australia.
- May 2021: Continued spread, with the first cases reported in New Zealand.
- June 2021: Widespread transmission, leading to the first deaths in New Zealand.
- July 2021: Continued spread, with the first cases reported in Japan.
- August 2021: Widespread transmission, leading to the first deaths in Japan.
- September 2021: Continued spread, with the first cases reported in South Korea.
- October 2021: Widespread transmission, leading to the first deaths in South Korea.
- November 2021: Continued spread, with the first cases reported in Italy.
- December 2021: Widespread transmission, leading to the first deaths in Italy.
- January 2022: Continued spread, with the first cases reported in France.
- February 2022: Widespread transmission, leading to the first deaths in France.
- March 2022: Continued spread, with the first cases reported in Germany.

[illegible]